

These are guaranteed scholarship money.

Just calculate your GPA in this format:

$(\text{Your GPA (as on transcript)} * 4) / (\text{maximum GPA in your educational system.})$

For example:

In the HSC, if someone got 4.8, his GPA in 4.0 scale will be:

$(4.8 * 4) / 5 = 3.84$

As for listed scholarships, just see if your score is equal or higher than the required scores of certain university.

For example, one student will get full tuition scholarship in University of Alabama with a SAT score of 1400 or above and a GPA of 3.5 or above (if got admitted). An additional scholarship of 2500 is available in the University of Alabama if the student gets enrolled in the engineering school and graduated with a STEM major. For that go to the website. If you have question about such procedure. Ask in the comment box. I will try to response as soon as I can (remember I am not a current undergrad students. I am applying this year)

Thanks.
